Apr 12, 2021(The Geller Report: <https://gellerreport.com> Delivered by Newstex) Chaos erupted in Minneapolis late Sunday night after demonstrations turned violent following a police shooting at a traffic stop in the nearby city of Brooklyn Center; prompting the Governor to authorize the National Guard to restore order.'A citywide curfew was issued by Brooklyn Center Mayor Mike Elliott until 6 a.m. CT Monday. About 500 people had gathered overnight outside of a police precinct in the city and clashed with officers,' reports[1] Fox News.By John Nolte, Breitbart,[2] April 11, 2021: My weekend? Well, I live out here in Rural MAGA Land, so my weekend was like every weekend in Rural MAGA Land In a word blissful. Clean air.

Clean water. No shootings. No lootings. No riots. No racial tension. The wind was a little chillier than I would have liked. Nevertheless, I mustered through and still got my camper washed and cleaned and ready to go. Got my pickup washed. Watched movies. Grilled burgers. Chatted with neighbors. Walked dogs. It was nice. You know, the usual-usual. Thanks for asking! Isn't it odd how us Trump voters are relentlessly smeared as violent, racist, and anti-environment, and yet, out where we all live and all own guns, it's peaceful, there are no racial problems, and our air, water, and streets are safe and clean? Highlight: DAUNTE WRIGHT was shot dead by a police officer who mistook her handgun for her taser during a traffic stop near Minneapolis. But who was Daunte Wright? And what are the protests in Minnesota all about?

Body

Daunte Wright's death sparked a second evening of civil unrest on Monday when hundreds of Minnesota citizens defied a curfew order and congregated at the Brooklyn Centre police station, chanting Mr Wright's name. Officers in riot gear fired a small number of gas canisters and flash-bang grenades in an effort to dissipate the crowds after some protestors threw bottles. As police ordered crowds to "move back!", they chanted back: "Hands up! Don't shoot!" National Guard troops had been expected to more than double to 1,000 by Monday night in case the situation escalated further.

Who was Duante Wright? Daunte Wright was a 20-year-old Black man living in the Minneapolis suburb of Brooklyn Centre.

Mr Wright was fatally shot by a police officer, Kim Potter, during a traffic stop in his home area.

Police have since released more information on the death of Mr Wright, including graphic body camera footage of the event.

According to Police Chief Tim Gannon, the officer involved and who is now on leave, was supposed to reach for her Taser stun gun.

In the body-cam footage, she can be heard shouting: "I'll tase you. Taser! Taser! Taser!"

But the video shows the female officer holding what looks to be a gun before shooting Mr Wright amid a struggle with other officers.

Daunte Wright shooting: Who was Daunte Wright? Why are there protests in Minnesota?

Police officials believe she accidentally used her gun instead of the intended taser, with the officer recorded on body cam saying: "Holy s, I just shot him."

Chief Gannn told a press conference on Monday: "This appears to me, from what I viewed and the officer's reaction in distress immediately after, that this was an accidental discharge that resulted in the tragic death of Mr Wright."

Authorities said Mr Wright was pulled over for having an expired vehicle registration, and that police tried to arrest him after finding out he had an outstanding warrant.

Mr Wright managed to drive for several streets before crashing his car and dying from a gunshot wound to the chest, according to the medical examiner.

The family of Mr Wright don't accept the conclusion it was an accident, however, with Mr Wright's half-brother Dallas saying his "brother lost his life because they [police] were trigger happy".

Mr Wright's mother Katie Wright said: "My heart is broken in a thousand pieces, I miss him so much and it's only been one day.

"He was my life, he was my son, and I can never get that back. Because of a mistake? Because of an accident?"

Brooklyn Centre mayor Mike Elliot called the shooting "deeply tragic" and said he wants the officer to be dismissed from her role.

Why are there protests in Minnesota? The protests in Minnesota are about the death of Mr Wright at the hands of police officer, an all-too-common occurrence in the US.

Tensions in Minneapolis remain very high anyway due to the trial over the death of George Floyd taking place just 10 miles away.

President Joe Biden has called for a "full-blown investigation" into the matter but urged people to remain peaceful.

The lawyer who helped win a $27million settlement for the George Floyd family said he was now representing the Wrights.

Attorney Ben Crump said in a statement: "Daunte Wright is yet another young Black man killed at the hands of those who have sworn to protect and serve all of us - not just the whitest among us."

The Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, part of the state's law enforcement team, is investigating the incident, but there are calls for a separate and independent body to carry out its own inquiry.

A statement from the group said it had "deep concerns that police here appear to have used dangling air fresheners as an excuse for making a pre-textual stop, something police do all too often to target Black people".

Daunte Wright, a 20-year-old African-American man, was shot and killed due to an "accidental discharge" in a traffic stop incident involving Minnesota police, with the cop in question mistakenly using a gun instead of a taser, according to Police Chief Tim Gannon.

The Twin Cities area of Minnesota continued to be the scene of massive protests for the second consecutive night on Monday after the fatal police shooting of Daunte Wright, a 20-year-old black man.

Despite a 7 p.m. curfew set in place in the county by Minnesota Gov. Tim Walz, hundreds of people who had gathered throughout the day outside the Brooklyn Center, Minnesota police precinct for a vigil for Wright decided to stay beyond that time.

Around 300 people had attended the peaceful vigil for Wright at the site of the traffic stop where the shooting took place.

Earlier, police had erected a chain link fence and concrete barriers around the precinct, with local law enforcement joined by Minnesota National Guard and Minnesota State Patrol officers to surround the building, according to Star Tribune.

As most of the protesting crowds lingered, tear gas was deployed by police just before 8 p.m., triggering a spate of clashes between demonstrators and law enforcement.

As the night wore on, there was more tear gas, rubber bullets and flash grenades used, while crowds were seen throwing fireworks and water bottles at police, according to local reports.

At around 9:30 p.m. Minnesota Attorney General Keith Ellison and Brooklyn Center Mayor Mike Elliot addressed the protesters, urging them to go home, with the crowd gradually starting to dwindle.

Daunte Wright, 20, was fatally shot by a Brooklyn Center veteran police officer, identified by Star Tribune as Kimberly Potter, after being pulled over for a traffic violation.

According to reports, he was initially stopped for having air fresheners dangling from his rear-view mirror, which is illegal in the state. According to a release later issued by the Brooklyn Center Police Department, upon further examination, officers determined that there was an outstanding arrest warrant for Wright.

A scuffle broke out between the cops and Wright, who attempted to get back inside his vehicle.

Amid the struggle, the police officer who intended to deploy a Taser fired a handgun instead, resulting in an "accidental discharge," according to Police Chief Tim Gannon.

After explaining video footage from the scene of the incident and analyzing the officer's subsequent reaction to the shooting, Gannon said:

"The officer had the intention to deploy their Taser but instead shot Mr. Wright with a single bullet."

Footage of the incident posted online shows the officer exclaiming, "Holy st. I just shot him."

Sunday's police shooting of Daunte Wright sparked clashes between police and protesters, riots and widespread looting in Brooklyn Centre, the community where the incident took place.

US President Joe Biden said on Monday that there is no justification for looting and violence in the United States, as he commented on the recent killing of the African American man by a police officer in the state of Minnesota.

The fatal shooting fed into the already tense situation in Minnesota amid the trial of Derek Chauvin, a former US police officer charged with killing black man George Floyd on 25 May 2020.

Floyd died after Chauvin and three other officers arrested him outside a Minneapolis shop, where he was accused of using a counterfeit $20 bill.

A viral video from the scene showed white police officer Chauvin kneeling on Floyd's neck for over eight minutes, despite the latter's pleas that he could not breathe. Floyd, 46, died in a local hospital the same day.

While all four officers involved in the detention were fired and later arrested, Chauvin has since been charged with 2nd-degree murder, 2nd-degree manslaughter, and 3rd-degree murder.

Floyd's death in police custody had unleashed a sea of protests against police brutality and racial injustice, spearheaded by the Black Lives Matter (BLM) movement, with repercussions felt around the world.

At least 40 people were arrested following another night of riots in Brooklyn Center after the fatal shooting of 20-year-old Daunte Wright, according to authorities.

Some individuals were arrested for violating the curfew, rioting and burglary.

Daunte Wright, 20, was shot and killed Sunday by a 26-year-veteran of the Brooklyn Center Police Department after resisting arrest. The police chief said he believed the officer, Kim Potter, meant to grab her Taser but instead grabbed her service pistol.

Five burglaries were reported in nearby Minneapolis, according to Minneapolis Police Department Deputy Chief Amelia Huffman. A liquor store, tobacco store, shoe store and AutoZone were among the stores burglarized. Four individuals were arrested for burglary, six were arrested for curfew violations, Huffman said.

"We just want to say thank you for all the people who came out and exercised their First Amendment right in a peaceful manner," Minnesota Department of Public Safety Assistant Commissioner Booker Hodges said Tuesday morning. "Unfortunately, there were those who decided not to do that."

"For months we've been saying riotous behavior is just not going to be tolerated, and unfortunately tonight, that is some of the things we encountered."

Video shows dozens of protesters breaking curfew Monday night as they gathered outside the Brooklyn Center Police Department.

Democratic Gov. Tim Walz issued a 7 p.m. curfew Monday night in Brooklyn Center and surrounding communities.

"Daunte Wright's death is a tragedy. We're committed to ensuring Minnesotans can safely exercise their right to make their voices heard and demand change," Walz said. "We will not allow anyone to exploit this tragedy. If you try to use this tragedy to harm our communities, you will be arrested."

"By helping distinguish peaceful protesters from those who wish to perpetuate violence, this curfew is a preventative step to keep our cities safe tonight."
