NPR recently did a segment dedicated to the question of whether or not the US politics has entered into a state of "post-shame politics". They discussed the examples of Representative George Santos, as well as Presidents Bill Clinton and Donald Trump.

In the case of Santos they cited the numerous proven lies that Santos has fabricated; including lies about his education, job history, property ownership, ancestry, and much more including crimes he has committed. In the case of Bill Clinton, the NPR commentators spoke about the allegations of womanizing and draft dodging as well as perjury and his affair with Monica Lewinsky. The example of Trump revolved around the Access Hollywood tape that features Trump speaking lewdly about sexual assault and female anatomy.

There are several aspects to Santos' story that make it particularly offensive and egregious to a sizable portion of the American public. This speaks to just how low the bar has fallen in terms of the standards that "leaders" are held to. How is it that somebody who not only won their party's nomination but also their general election, felt comfortable enough that they could lie about almost everything under the sun?

Santos has so far refused to resign and has hinted that he actually plans to weather the storm and run for re-election, despite repeated calls from both parties for his resignation. From his family, to his education and work history, crimes he claims to have been a victim of, bogus residency claims, and so much more; there is very little that Santos has been truthful about. Yet, Santos is one of 435 voting members of the House of Representatives and he felt he would be protected and comfortable enough to spread and repeat these easily verifiable facts. This just goes to show how little shame the political class has and how little respect the elites have for the people of this country.

I think to a certain extent it is clear; we are indeed living through a political stage that is without shame, but the question remains. Has US politics ever not been shrouded in shame? Countless instances of political corruption,

US' shameful politics will continue as parasitic oligarchy prevails sex scandals, conflicts of interest, and crimes can be cited as evidence that the US political class truly has no shame. Conduct that would certainly and rightfully lead to an average person getting fired at work and in their career has become commonplace for the US ruling class and its politicians.

Even more recently we have seen political shame taken to new heights; heights that gravely insult the intelligence and the sensibilities of the people of the US. Corporate greed, privatization, and deregulation have all contributed in no small parts to the recent train derailments in Ohio.

These trains were for whatever reason carrying carcinogenic and poisonous chemicals. While the infrastructure across the US continues to crumble beneath our feet, the company responsible for these derailments; Norfolk Southern, has spent billions of dollars on stock buybacks. This same company has pledged a 2.5 million dollar "community support fund" which I am sure will entitle them to more tax breaks. 2.5 million for the crimes that occurred in Ohio, and 10 billion dollars for a stock buyback program... this is what passes for justice in the US; shame! While other nations, especially including China, can boast of high speed rail that is safe, affordable, and convenient, people in the US will have to settle for derailments and poisoned food, air, and water.

While toxic clouds of poison engulf communities and destroy the air that we breathe, the food that we eat, and the water that we drink, US politicians are nowhere to be found. Oh wait! We all actually knew exactly where President Biden was while people in East Palestine are being subjected to poisoned water, air, and food; he was in Kiev, Ukraine!

To Biden, and the rest of the political and economic elites, the citizens of East Palestine simply are not on their radar; they are simply forgotten workers/plebeians. To add insult to injury, the Biden administration has been wholly absent in any meaningful response to the tragedy in Ohio, meanwhile billions and billions of liquidity and weapons alike is being pumped into Ukraine for their proxy war against Russia. Trump of course went to Ohio for a fabulous display of political PR, but he also holds no answers for the working people of the US... but at least he showed up.

To answer the NPR journalists question; yes, we are living through a post-shame era of politics in the US. This shameful system will continue for as long as the people remain subjects of the parasitic oligarchy that has infected the US political, economic, and media systems. The people of this country have great shame for their government, yet we remain powerless to stop it.

The advocacy group Palestine Legal has released their 2022 report on Palestinian activism, backlash against it, and resilience in the face of crackdowns.

Palestine Legal reports that in 2022 it responded to 214 incidents of suppression of Palestinian advocacy in the US. Of these, 70 percent of incidents took place at 80 educational institutions. They also responded to 48 legal questions from activists concerned about their rights. In addition, the group provided an overview of some of the key the stories behind these numbers.

"By sharing these stories together and seeing the backlash people face, we're building a support system and speaking out for one another," Zoha Khalili, a staff attorney with Palestine Legal and an author of the report, told The New Arab.

These stories included Palestinian poet Mohammad El-Kurd, who faced attempts at derailing his book tour at US college campuses; professors facing backlash over lectures; and students being punished for allegedly posting pro-Palestinian fliers. In each of these cases, the activists were accused of antisemitism.

Last year saw a slew of anti-Palestinian legislation, with at least 11 anti-BDS bills introduced at the state level, as well as at least eight bills introduced in state legislatures to adopt the definition of antisemitism by the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance, which has been widely interpreted as equating criticism of Israel as antisemitism. Implementation of the IHRA antisemitism definition appears to be accelerating in 2023.

The widespread crackdowns on Palestinian activism in the US comes at a time of major debates throughout the country over how to teach history, particularly slavery, in school. Book bans at schools and libraries in Florida and Texas, mainly relating to race and gender, have become commonplace. Khalili says she has seen suppression of Palestinian activism used as a template to crack down on other movements, which she believes is all the more reason to speak out.

"It can be a little depressing, with the obstacles people have faced," Khalili said. "But what's important is to recognise that people continue to speak out about Palestine, and they know the importance of doing so. Seeing this level of backlash, it's kind of inspiring."

Six Palestinians were killed and 26 others were injured on Tuesday during an Israeli army assault on the Northern West Bank city of Jenin, according to the Ministry of Health.

The dead were identified as Mohammad Wael Ghazawi, 26, Majd Mohammad Huseinieh, 26, Tareq Ziad Natour, 27, Ziad Amin Zareini, 29, Abdul Fattah Hussein Khrousheh, 49, and Mutasem Nasser Sabbagh, 22, WAFA news agency reported.

It said three of the injured are critical, shot in the chest and in the pelvis.

WAFA correspondent said the army raided Jenin refugee camp and fired a missile at one of the houses. Armed clashes broke out leading to the killing six and the injury of others.

With the six killed on Tuesday, the total number of Palestinians the Israeli army has killed or caused their death has reached 73, including minors, elderly men and a woman.

Presidential Spokesman Nabil Abu Rudeineh said on Tuesday, the daily killings carried out by the Israeli occupation forces against the Palestinian people, the latest of which was today in Jenin refugee camp, and the bombing of homes with rockets and explosive shells is an all-out war and destroys everything.

He stressed in a statement that the Israeli government bears full responsibility for this dangerous escalation, which threatens an explosion in the situation and destroys all efforts aimed at restoring stability.

The crime committed by the occupation forces reaffirms the Israeli government's intention to thwart all regional and international efforts aimed at stopping all unilateral actions, which the Israeli side insists on continuing, said Abu Rudeineh.

He called on the US administration to take immediate action and put effective pressure on the Israeli government to stop its crimes and continuous aggression against the Palestinian people, stressing that the current events have proven that resolving the Palestinian issue in accordance with international legitimacy and international law and giving the Palestinian people their right to freedom and independence is the real key to resolving the region's crises.

Prime Minister Mohammad Shtayyeh also condemned what he described as the horrific massacre committed by the Israeli occupation forces in Jenin camp this evening, which claimed the lives of six Palestinians and a number of injuries, in addition to the targeting of homes and the destruction of property, and said that the Palestinians will continue in their struggle until they gain their freedom and independence.

Palestine/Israel: Six Palestinians Martyred, 26 Injured in Israeli Army Assault on Jenin Refugee Camp

Shtayyeh called on the US administration to intervene to stop the massacres in the Palestinian cities, towns, villages and refugee camps, in which dozens of people are killed.

He also called on international human rights organizations to condemn this crime, to hold the occupation authorities fully responsible for it and for all crimes committed, and not to allow the perpetrators to escape punishment.

Shtayyeh affirmed the right of the Palestinian people to continue their struggle to end the occupation, obtain their freedom, and establish their independent state with Jerusalem as its capital. - FNA

Envoy chides the West as Israeli soldiers kill six more at West Bank

Palestine Ambassador to Kenya Hazem Shabat has described attacks by Israeli settlers and soldiers at the occupied West Bank as "state-sponsored terrorism".

His comments came after the Palestine Health ministry yesterday said that six Palestinians were on Tuesday killed in an Israeli military raid at Jenin refugee camp in West Bank.

Israel said one of the dead had been responsible for killing two Israeli brothers last month, the BBC reported yesterday.

Shabat blamed the international community for the violence witnessed at West Bank saying it had not taken action to curb Israel's aggression and hold it accountable for breaking international law numerous times.

"The international community is equally responsible for Israel's violations in occupied Palestine. The United States and other key European actors have continuously applied double standards in their upholding of international law when it comes to violations committed by Israel, the occupying power," he told The Standard in an interview.

Shabat noted that despite their declared statements on the violations, no concrete actions or measures have been taken to ensure Israel complies with UN Security Council resolutions.

Two weeks ago, an Israeli American was shot and killed in West Bank as violence intensified.

The shooting, the BBC reported, happened after Israeli settlers attacked Palestinian villages in West Bank with dozens of cars and houses burned.

That attack came after two settlers, from a nearby village, were shot dead by a Palestinian. Israel's government described the killings in Hawara as "a Palestinian terror attack".

"The last wave of violence is a direct result to the continuous incitement at the highest level in the new radical Israeli government. A few days ago, the Israeli Minister of Finance (Bezalel Smotrich) called for the wiping out of a town called Hawara. This has received a considerable amount of condemnation," Shabat told ;The Standard.

Envoy chides the West as Israeli soldiers kill six more at West Bank

The US State Department termed Smotrich's statement as incitement to violence and called on Israel Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu to publicly condemn it.

Reuters quoted US State Department spokesperson Ned Price saying that Smotrich's comments "were irresponsible, repugnant and disgusting".

But Shabat told The Standard that if these condemnations do not translate "to action on the ground to hold Israel accountable, it will be in violation of international laws and the peace agreement".

"The international community's accommodation for inciteful rhetoric is an invitation for more war crimes to be perpetrated against the Palestinian people who have been living under Israel's military occupation for over 56 years."

The Envoy added that "overlooking expansion of colonial settlements in the occupied territory, state backed terrorism against our people, and countless other crimes only feeds into the conflict and drives us away from a peaceful and just solution".

When asked by the Palestinian President to put an end to Israel's violations, Shabat said, the US president claimed that it was beyond his powers, and only Jesus could achieve such a miracle. ;

He said fighting Israelis on Palestinian territory is a right no country or leader can take away from them and they will use "whatever means is necessary".

Shabat said the attacks by Israeli settlers took place in Palestinian lands in violation of international law.

The envoy said the international community takes steps to ensure violence doesn't escalate but it has not taken any step to end the occupation which begun on June 7, 1967 when Israel seized control of the Gaza Strip, West Bank, Golan Heights, East Jerusalem and the Sinai Peninsula.

It also permanently annexed East Jerusalem and built military administrations in occupied territories. ;

Under the United Nations Charter, the United Nations Security Council has primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security.

The UNSC resolution 2334 of 2016, condemned ;"all measures aimed at altering the demographic composition, character and status of the Palestinian Territory occupied since 1967, including East Jerusalem, including, inter alia, the construction and expansion of settlements, transfer of Israeli settlers, confiscation of land, demolition of homes and displacement of Palestinian civilians, in violation of international humanitarian law and relevant resolutions."

Shabat said though the United Nations general assembly recognises Palestine as a State, the country still remains an observer State and not a member of the UN. "This is because membership requires that the five UN Security Council permanent members (China, France, Russia, the United Kingdom, and the United States) should all be onboard in a resolution making Palestine a member and we failed to get the approval of the Americans," he told The Standard.

In 2012, the UN general assembly voted overwhelmingly to recognise Palestine as a state amid opposition from the United States and Israel.

The 193-member assembly voted 138 in favour, with only nine against and 41 abstentions.

US President Joe Biden visited Palestine in July last year and he was met by small pockets of protests. At the time, Biden promised $300 million ($38.4 billion) in aid.

But Shabat told The Standard that the visit exposes the United States's double standards. He said the tour was proof that the US recognised Palestine as country and respected its leadership but wondered why Washington was not pushing for implementations of existing peace agreements.

Envoy chides the West as Israeli soldiers kill six more at West Bank

"Unfortunately, American foreign policy on Israel is driven by internal partisan politics. Israel's support of the Jewish lobby in American politics is very strong,' he said.

'No,' he said when asked if he would classify Hamas - an Islamic resistance movement - as a terrorist organisation.

He compared Hamas with Kenya's freedom fighters - Mau Mau. He said just like the Mau Mau, Hamas was fighting an occupying force.

Shabat however clarified that he does not support Hamas's methods of trying to end the Israeli occupation. He said the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) was pursuing "legal means of restoring peace and ending the occupation." "We condemn the killing of civilians be they Palestinian or Israelis," he said.

Asked whether how Kenya and Palestine's engagement has changed with the change of leadership, the envoy said: "Kenyan Palestinian consultations and communications between the highest levels in both countries continue to indicate a strong Kenyan foreign policy on the Palestinian inalienable rights and aspirations for full independence based on relevant Security Council resolutions on the matter."

Shabat however noted that the Kenyan engagement on the Palestinian cause needs to catch up with the developments of the conflict.

"This is something that we expect to witness once the new government overcomes the pressing challenges, such as the drought, economic recovery, and cost of living," he said.

He said the US has in the past pressured African partners to take positions that were not aligned with international law or their long-standing international positions. "This was evident in 2012 when the US diplomatically influenced African positions to spare itself the immorality of using the veto power on the issue of The State of Palestine's United Nations membership bid," the Envoy added.

He was referring to Nigeria's abstention to avoid the matter being considered and voted on.

"The reports of the Trump administration insisting to include Israel in the Trade agreement with Kenya should be considered blackmail. It is taking advantage of the country's aspiration to development and prosperity to enforce the US's impunity to Israel as a condition," he continued.

In Egypt, at a recent meeting of the Arab League, Mahmoud Abbas announced his intention to seek full membership in the UN for the 'State of Palestine.' More on his plans, and what should prevent them from being realized, can be found here[1].

The UN was established in the wake of the Holocaust in order to ensure the wholesale slaughter of a people would never happen again. This will be the final death cry of a vicious, corrupt, failed institution. Palestinianism is a euphemism Islamic genocide of the Jews. 'Palestine' is Israel.

Above photo: The actual flag of Palestine — 1939. Further proof of the lie (as if we needed any more) of the vicious historical revisionism by the Muslim world to erase the Jewish State and create a mythical Islamic narrative surrounding five thousand years of Jewish history.

The fact is that Palestine is Israel — the Jewish homeland.

After the Romans conquered the Jews in the Jewish-Roman wars, the Romans renamed Israel after the Jews' worst enemies — the Philistines — in order to further humiliate them.

he term was first used to denote an official province in c.135 CE, when the Roman authorities, following the suppression of the [Jewish] Bar Kokhba Revolt, combined Iudaea Province with Galilee and the Paralia to form 'Syria Palaestina'. (source)[2]

It was a Roman Emperor who first coined the name.

In AD 135, the Emperor Hadrian blotted out the name 'Provincia Judea' and renamed it 'Provincia Syria Palaestina'. This was the Latin version of the Greek name and soon became a name to be used as an administrative unit. This name was shortened to Palaestina and the name 'Palestine' was derived from it as a modern and anglicized version. (more here)[3]

In other words, it was always Jewish.

Leading up to Israel's independence[4] in 1948, it was common for the international press to label Jews, not Arabs, living in the mandate as Palestinians. It was not until years after Israeli independence that the Arabs living in the West Bank[5] and Gaza Strip[6] were called Palestinians. In fact, Arabs cannot even correctly pronounce the word Palestine in their native tongue, referring to area rather as 'Filastin.'

The word Palestine or Filastin does not appear in the Koran[7]. The term peleshet appears in the Jewish Tanakh[8] no fewer than 250 times. (Jewish Virtual Library)

If you think a Palestinian State did exist, feel free to provide dates.

I'll wait.

FYI, a Palestinian State NEVER existed. In fact, a Palestinian State NEVER EVER existed.

Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas told the Arab League in Cairo on Sunday that the PA will ask the United Nations this week to grant Palestinians full membership.

The Palestinians currently have non-member observer state status at the UN.

'Abbas told the Arab League's conference on Jerusalem that in addition to a membership push, he would seek to have the UN reaffirm its commitment to a two-state solution as well as condemn what he called Israel's 'unilateral measures,' such as settlement construction.

Israel's claim to Judea and Samaria, where more than half a million Israeli citizens live in its towns and cities — is based on the following:

First, the Mandate for Palestine itself, which assigned all the land 'from the river to the sea' to the future Jewish National Home. Article 6 of the Mandate requires that the Mandatary (Great Britain) should 'facilitate immigration' by Jews and 'encourage close settlement by Jews on the land.' Which land? All the land, according to the League of Nations, from Mt. Hermon in the north to the Red Sea in the south, and from the Jordan River in the east to the Mediterranean in the west.

Second, a completely independent basis for Israel holding onto Judea and Samaria is the right of the victor in a defensive war to keep territory from which the aggression against it was launched. This was made clear in UN Security Council Resolution 242, which upheld the right of Israel to retain territory needed in order for it to have 'secure [i.e ., defensible] and recognized boundaries.' It was the chief author of Resolution 242, British UN Ambassador Lord Caradon, who explained that there would be no return by Israel to the 1949 armistice line. He was familiar with the 1949 armistice line, he said, 'and it was a rotten line.' Were Israel ever to allow itself to be squeezed back within the 1949 armistice lines, it would be left with a nine-mile-waist from Qalqilya to the sea.

'The State of Palestine will continue going to international courts and organizations to protect our people's legitimate rights,' he [Abbas] said.

Focusing on Jerusalem, Abbas claimed it was a 'religious duty' to support Palestinians living in the city, as well as a 'humanitarian and national imperative.'

Terror Top Dog Mahmoud Abbas Seeks Full Membership In the UN For Terror State of ' Palestine '

If Abbas wants to persuade the other Arabs to give the PA more money to deliver to Palestinians in east Jerusalem, Israel won't prevent it. Why should it? Israel has a stake in Palestinian prosperity, which is why it recently increased the number of permits allowing Palestinians to work in Israel; 17,000 such permits were provided for residents of Gaza and 100,000 for Palestinians in the West Bank.

This 'support for Palestinians' living in Jerusalem is not really about Abbas' solicitude for the Palestinians in east Jerusalem. The grasping Mahmoud Abbas has been alarmed at the steep decrease in aid to the P.A. from the rich Arab states, and thinks 'raising funds for Palestinians in Jerusalem' should lead to more money flowing into the P.A.'s coffers. And, as always, when that aid arrives, President Abbas, his sons Tarek and Yasser, and his cronies, will help themselves by taking something off the top.

He [Abbas] cited the British government's 1917 Balfour Declaration, in which the then-British foreign secretary Lord Arthur Balfour declared his government's support for a Jewish state in the area then known as Mandatory Palestine.

No, Abbas has his chronology all wrong. The Balfour Declaration dates from November 1917. The area was not 'then known as Mandatory Palestine.' The Palestine Mandate was only created five years later, in 1922. That Mandate was not the doing of Great Britain alone, but of all the Great Powers in the League of Nations, who supported the Mandates system, of which the Palestine Mandate was only one.

'The battle raging over Jerusalem did not only begin on the day of its occupation in 1967, but several decades prior to that, and even before the Balfour Declaration which was issued by the colonial powers, led by Britain and America,' Abbas was quoted by WAFA, the PA's official news agency, as saying.

Abbas apparently does not realize that the United States had nothing to do with the Balfour Declaration.
